County Survey Says Tax Reduction Justified

$19,600 SLASH SUGGESTED BY STATE C. OF C.

Competent Management By Officials Credited With Public Savings

FEW RECOMMENDATIONS

Earmarking Of Funds For Post War Projects And Land Sales Urged

Pickaway county government officials Friday were receiving compliments on the efficient manner in which their duties have been discharged.

W. R. Evans and W. C. McWilliams of the research department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce praised county officials at a meeting Thursday night in the Circleville Chamber of Commerce. They stated their survey of the operations of Pickaway county revealed that progress had been made in all departments. They stated Pickaway county finances were in better condition than most counties in the state.

Only a few recommendations for improvements were suggested in the recently-completed survey.

Report Presented

Attending the meeting, which was in charge of James I. Smith, Jr., president of the Pickaway district council which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, were representatives of county government, farmers, manufacturers and business men.

Following the presentation of the report Mr. Evans and Mr. McWilliams conducted a forum discussion of the recommendations.

Chief recommendation was that county taxes be reduced because of the cash balance that has been built up through good management. (Continued on Page Two)

COLMER URGES RESTORATION OF CCC AFTER WAR

WASHINGTON, July 28—Rep. Colmer (D) Miss., chairman of the house postwar planning committee, recommended today rebirth of a Civilian Conservation Corps to combat unemployment after the war and to restore the nation's "war-depleted" forests.

"The work should coincide with the job done by the depression-born CCC," Colmer declared, adding that the federal government should, in his opinion, have assistance in financing the program.

Colmer made it clear that the committee has not yet considered the proposal.

"But I know of no better way to replenish the forests and provide gainful occupations—the forests have been ravaged by war needs for lumber and pulpwood," he continued.

"This great national resource must be protected."

Army and Navy Act To Forestall Snarl In Soldier-Sailor Vote

WASHINGTON, July 28—The Army and the Navy went into action today to curb their first soldier-sailor vote headache and forestall, if possible, a bad case of national migraine on election day.

Word that scores of federal war ballots had been prematurely received and invalidated in California, bringing a flood of inquiries into the U. S. War Ballot Commission, caused issuance of new instructions emphasizing that the ballots may not be distributed or cast before October 2.

The Navy, apparently concerned that many or all the irregular ballots may have come from naval or merchant marine units, issued an "ALNAV" — notice to all naval personnel ashore and afloat—calling attention again to provisions of the law and previous instructions.

At the same time, the Navy's judge advocate-general, Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, was asked for a legal opinion on the voting status of any Naval personnel who may have violated the law by operating ballots and voting two months too soon.

No G. I.'s Involved
The Army, more or less confident that no "G. I.'s" were involved, reiterated that it had done all possible to assure compliance and promised any "necessary corrective action" should Army personnel be found at fault.

"It's like overlooking the fine print on an insurance policy," said one Navy source. "Someone just didn't read the instructions or was" (Continued on Page Two)

DEAN OF THE SENATE, E. D. (Cotton Ed) Smith of South Carolina, and the only woman senator, Mrs. Hattie Caraway of Arkansas, have both been defeated in state Democratic primaries, as they ran for re-election to their seventh and fourth terms, respectively. An anti-New Dealer, Smith was defeated by South Carolina's pro-Roosevelt governor, Olin D. Johnston, 48, while Mrs. Caraway, who was the only Arkansas senatorial candidate to endorse F. D. R.'s fourth term, lost to Representative J. W. Fulbright, author of noted "Lasting Peace" resolution.

JAPANESE DRIVE THREATENS U. S. VICTORY PLANS

General Shang Chen Gives Alarming Picture Of Situation In China

COAST MAY BE BLOCKED

Russians Criticised For Failure To Hold Enemy On Northern Front

WASHINGTON, July 28—China's foremost military expert in Washington declared today that any American plans for effecting a landing on the China coast are seriously jeopardized by the current Japanese offensive against the key rail city of Hengyang.

General Shang Chen, chief of the Chinese military mission, gave a frank and alarming picture of the threat to American strategy—as well as to the safety of China's capital city of Chungking—if the Japanese take the beleaguered city of Hengyang on the Canton-Hankow railway.

A Chinese garrison is now isolated within the city, trying to hold off the attacks of four Japanese divisions.

Japs Move South

At the same time, General Shang Chen revealed that this threat was made possible by the ability of the Japanese to move eight divisions—somewhere between 80,000 and 100,000 men—into the South China area from the Russian border.

He made it clear that if the Russian threat to Japan were greater, these troops could not have been moved, and the threat to China would not have become so great.

He said he knew of no agreement between Russia and Japan permitting this release of troops from Manchuria, but acknowledged that recent Moscow attacks against the Chungking government had probably give assurances to Japan.

The eight divisions moved from that border represented one-third of the former Japanese force of 24 divisions.

Big Jap Prize

Pointing out on a map the strategic situation of Hengyang, the Chinese general said that with this city in their hands, the Japanese will be free to strike westward toward Chungking, south of Canton, and east to Shanghai.

By establishing rail contact with Shanghai, the Japanese, he said, will be free for the first time to move troops into that south coastal city by the rail route from Northern China, and thus avoid the necessity of movements by sea, which are becoming increasingly dangerous as a result of the American submarine campaign.

This would make it far more difficult to carry out the American strategy of landing on the China coast for attacks on the mainland of Japan.

SYNTHETIC GAS SEEN AS "MUST" FOLLOWING WAR

WASHINGTON, July 28—Rep. Randolph (D) W. Va., labeling synthetic gasoline as a "must" after the war, warned today this nation's fuel supply must be bolstered to meet demands of greatly expanded private aircraft operations.

Randolph, responsible for legislation appropriating five million dollars for development of synthetic liquid fuels from coal, oil shale and agricultural products, predicted that should the war end in 1945, there will be two million or more privately owned airplanes in operation within 10 years.

At the same time, he disclosed that location of a site for synthetic fuel experimentation will be announced shortly with several states being considered.

MEET "THE HITLER GANG"—These "men" are not movie actors, but they're putting on a real act for the Germans. The four of them, Adolf Hitler, Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Paul Joseph Goebbels and Heinrich Himmler, are running Germany today. Herr Hitler has invested Goering and Goebbels with sweeping powers over Nazi public and private life in a move apparently exterminating any conservative influence following an attempt on his life and a purge of Army officers. Goering was appointed chairman of the ministerial council for defense of the Reich. Goebbels, the propaganda minister, was named Reichs commissar for total mobilization for war. Himmler is all-powerful commander-in-chief of the army at home as well as head of the dreaded Gestapo. (International)

Woman's Party Plans Pressing Congress For 22nd Amendment Okeh

WASHINGTON, July 28—The reconvening of congress promised today to witness a renewed struggle by proponents of equal rights for women for house and senate approval of a 22nd amendment to the Constitution.

Congress will return Tuesday after a five-week recess, but it was uncertain whether the fight for the equal rights amendment would be launched immediately or delayed until September. Indications are that congress may take a second recess until after Labor Day.

Flushed with their victories at the Republican and Democratic national conventions, where equal rights planks were written into both platforms, the National Woman's Party, leading sponsor of the amendment, felt that it was near victory.

Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the Woman's Party and leading figure in the 21-year fight for the amendment, hailed the Democratic action at Chicago, which reversed its stand of the last two decades, as tantamount to victory.

The significance of the Democratic action lay in the fact that it had resisted such a move for 20 years, whereas the Republican party had given its support at the 1940 convention.

Essential Transport Threatened

Deficit Of Workers In Plants Forces Slash In Heavy Duty Tires

WASHINGTON, July 28—Despite a decline in direct war employment of 800,000 persons in the last eight months, a shortage of 6,000 workers today threatened a serious curtailment of essential civilian transportation.

Prouction officials termed the current crisis an "indictment" of the laxity of the nation's manpower controls, asserting that only a few thousand of the nearly one million workers were drafted and that the remainder simply were "lost" to war industry.

The deficit of 6,000 workers in tire manufacturing plants forced WPB to slash the allotment of heavy duty tires for civilian needs from 135,000 in July to 60,000 in August. Defense Transportation Director J. Monroe Johnson declared the quota as "grossly inadequate."

The few tires available will be rationed next month according to a rigid priority system which will place buses, police and fire vehicles, sanitation, public utility and similar requirements on top and relegate retail services, ice cream and beer deliveries to the bottom. Col. Bradley Dewey, who has recommended closing his office of rubber director September 1, asserted that plenty of synthetic rubber is available if the manpower can be recruited to man tire manufacturing facilities. Dewey termed manpower the "unsolved problem."

BERLIN PHONES SILENCED TO OUTSIDE WORLD

LONDON, July 28—With Berlin again cut off from telephonic communication from the rest of the world, the German underground Radio Deutscher Volksender today appealed to German students to hasten the downfall of Hitler.

"The signal for total underground opposition to hasten collapse of the Nazis has been given," the clandestine transmitter said. "Hitler started this war. Hitler's downfall will end it."

The Swiss newspaper St. Gallen Tagblatt, reported meanwhile, according to a Reuter dispatch from Zurich, that a special Gestapo concentration camp at Spandau had been filled with German officers ranging in rank from generals to lieutenants who are awaiting trial on charges of disaffection by special "SS" judges.

Reports from Stockholm said that telephone communications between Berlin and the outside were suspended during the night, leading to the belief that new internal strife may have broken out in the Reich.

It is possible, said a dispatch to the London Daily Mail, that elements of revolt within the German army again are demonstrating or that Hitler's purge of disaffected officers may now be at its height.

The severance of communications was similar to that which preceded Nazi announcement of the attempt of the life of Hitler.

24 KILLED AS U. S. PLANE HITS SCOTTISH CLIFF

LONDON, July 28—Twenty-four persons, including 17 wounded American fighting men, a nursing sister and the plane crew, were killed last night when the aircraft in which they were flying crashed into steep cliffs on the Scottish coast.

The plane was transporting the wounded men from the south of England to a Scottish hospital when it apparently struck the cliffs and fell down among the sharp rocks at the base of the hills. Fire broke out immediately. The plane was attached to the United States transport command.

BULLETIN
LONDON, July 28—American tank formations this morning launched a new attack in Normandy to the southwest from the Soules river which runs into the sea west of Coutances, the Nazi Transocean Agency reported.

BULLETIN
LONDON, July 28—American forces have captured 3,000 German troops in two days in their new offensive in Western Normandy, the London Evening News reported today.

By International News Service
German troops were in retreat all along the western sector of the French Normandy battlefield today in an effort to avoid a giant trap being closed by Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's American First Army.

American tank and infantry forces were reported by Reuter's to have slashed to within two miles of the strategic road and rail junctions of Coutances, virtually sealing the fate of enemy forces in and north of the city.

Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, striving desperately to avoid the yawning jaws of the American trap, pulled five divisions out of the neck of the Cherbourg peninsula. But the Americans, flushed with the success of their swift drive south and west of St. Lo, were in hot pursuit.

The Yanks met little opposition as they pressed forward during the night. Three Nazi infantry divisions and two paratroop divisions (Continued on Page Two)

G. I. JIVE AND BOOGIE WOOGIE NOT FOR RUSS

NEW YORK, July 28—G. I. jive and boogie-woogie are not for the Russians — they consider it low-brow, but definitely.

That's the report brought back today by two attractive girls, members of the first USO-camp shows troupe to entertain Russians on Russian soil.

Blonde Frances Cassard, soprano, and Martha B. Madison, pianist-accompanied, assert the Russians they entertained in rest camps on Russian soil at the Caspian sea and in Persia, want "heavy, classical music."

"They don't like our jazz and boogie-woogie," Miss Madison said. "Their soldiers have been trained since youth to like good music and their musical appreciation is much better than ours."

Jazz and boogie-woogie, however, are the only things American the Russians don't like, the two performers said.

"They are tremendously interested in everything American and you'd see almost all of the Russian soldiers thumbing an American grammar. They're vastly ahead of us in the matter of trying to learn a language."

sions pulled out of the battle line were reported in the area of Coutances. Their withdrawal was undertaken at the 11th hour in what apparently was an attempt to save as much of the German army in western Normandy as possible.

German heavy bombers, in the biggest attack they have yet carried out in the French battle zone, tried to stem the American advance and at the same time cover their own retreating forces by blasting advanced American infantry positions beyond St. Lo.

Advanced spearheads of American armored forces were reported in or near the outskirts of Coutances, which controls the main German escape routes from Western Normandy below the neck of the peninsula.

The Nazis announced today that they had abandoned the Polish city of Brest-Litovsk, 110 miles east of Warsaw, and their last major bastion on the central front.

Close On Warsaw

The Russians are closing in swiftly on Warsaw after capturing six important cities in their biggest day of the war. Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, commander of the First White Russian Army, was reported by Reuters to have moved his headquarters to a new forward position so he can direct the final stage of the battle for the Polish capital.

Reports from South Germany were quoted as saying that the Nazis had to abandon all work on fortifications in the Polish capital and it was doubtful that any serious attempt would be made to hold the city. These reports, which reached Zurich in neutral Switzerland, said that chaos prevails in Poland, with more than a million German refugees from Russia and East Prussia blocking the roadways.

The London Evening News reported that Russian tanks were crashing into the outer defenses of Warsaw. And from the official Communist party newspaper Pravda came word that both the "ways to Warsaw and Riga (capital of Latvia) are open."

Major Allied Drive

The German high command announced that Allied armies in Italy had launched a major attack on a broad front south of Florence, which stands just before the Nazis' Gothic defense line stretching from the Adriatic to the Ligurian sea.

Allied Mediterranean headquarters said merely that the Eighth Army had scored substantial gains in its drive on Florence and had occupied the town of San Casciano, seven miles south of the city on Highway No. 2, without meeting any opposition. Further progress northward was reported blocked by German demolitions.

Polish Eighth Army troops pushed ahead in the Adriatic sector of the front, but as Pisa, on the other end of the battle line, the situation remained unchanged. At last reports, American Fifth Army forces were in possession of part of the city that houses the famous leaning tower.

The Allied Mediterranean command disclosed that the bombing of the Manfred-Weiss works in Budapest yesterday had been highly effective despite the strong opposition of German fighter planes, 14 of which were shot down. Allied bombers again struck at the Ploesti oilfields in Romania last night.

British Mosquito bombers, flying from bases in Britain, hit the German industrial center of Stuttgart for the third time in four nights as more Nazi robot bombs crashed down on Southern England, including the London area.

An estimated force of 2,000 heavy American bombers and fighters attacked objectives in central Germany early today, but the specific targets were not immediately disclosed. The Nazis said violent air battles were fought over the Reich.

NAZIS EXPECT GREATER BLOWS ON WEST FRONT

LONDON, July 28—The continuous landing of large contingents of fresh troops in Normandy forebodes "a large-scale operation" in France, the Nazi agency DNB said today.

In the rear of both the British and American line, DNB said, large concentrations of men and material have been seen massing. Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, the agency continued, has more than 50 divisions and a high percentage of armor engaged.

"The Second Army alone has between 1,500 and 2,000 armored units in the field," DNB said. "The First Army may be said to have the same strength."

"The Normandy front may thus be linked to the great powder barrel ready to go off at the first spark."

BREW WORKERS RESUME JOBS IN CAPITAL PLANTS

COLUMBUS, July 28—Three hundred workmen who have tied up production in three of Columbus' four breweries since July 10 returned to work today pending a conference Saturday between Brewery officials and union representatives.

The decision to return to work was announced last night following a meeting of the strikers. Charles A. Demmler, business agent for the Brewery Workers Union Local 47, affiliated with the CIO, said the system of combining keg and bottle deliveries, which originally provoked the strike, would be discussed at the Saturday conference.

Demmler, in announcing the back-to-work order, said the decision was reached after brewery operators stubbornly declined to negotiate with the workers until they resumed production. He said the union felt it had "a duty to the public" as well as to retailers who have been "so loyal."

Meanwhile, a Brewery spokesman, notified of the union's action, said deliveries would be made today and Saturday to retail outlets who have been without beer since the strike began. "In order to help the public," the spokesman added, the breweries might break a precedent and work Sunday."

"PISTOL HEAD" BACK FROM WAR, FLIES IN STATE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28—There was one passenger on an eastward bound plane today who was not worried about priorities or being left behind at some station for a more important traveler.

The passenger, enroute to Brooklyn, N. Y., and the home of Mrs. Eileen B. Willis, is "Pistol Head," a sad-eyed cocker spaniel, home from the Pacific wars.

"Pistol Head's" master, Lt. Col. S. T. Willis, of the Seventh Bomber Command, was killed in action during a recent raid against the Japs, and the dog, grief-stricken, is being sent home where there are no enemy fighters peeling off out of the sun or enemy flak carpeting the sky roads with black mushrooms of hot steel.

The faithful dog had accompanied his master on 48 operational missions, but had accidentally been left behind on the last flight from which his plane failed to return.

Despite regulations prohibiting the transportation of dogs, "Pistol Head" found a seat on a United Air Lines mainliner, because he weighs only 15 pounds—and because he is a hero. And if anyone tries to remove him from the plane to make room for someone probably only as important as a senator or a war production executive, that unlucky person will have to fight every American flier in the South Pacific.

"Pistol Head" is going home—honorably discharged.

JAPANESE DENY DEATH ORDER ON YANKEE AIRMEN

LONDON, July 28—An official Japanese spokesman denied today that crews of American Superfortress bombers reported to have crashed on Japanese soil had been executed or would be executed.

The spokesman, Sadao Iguchi of the Japanese information board, was quoted in a Dornier wireless as saying that reports that the fliers of American B-24 Superfortresses had been executed was due to a misinterpretation of a Singapore broadcast.

The Japanese statement said: "There is no foundation in reports that American pilots who crashed on Japanese soil had been executed or would be executed. The reports are an example of malicious enemy propaganda."

"At the request of the American government, the Swiss legation submitted a note to the Japanese government on July 21 to which the Japanese government replied on July 25 that the note dealt with something which in reality was impossible. The Japanese reply contained this explanation of the American misunderstanding: 'The American government seems to have misinterpreted the radio message of July 15 from Shonan (Singapore). The announcer said only: 'Attacking B-24 bombers which were shot down out of the sky over Japan have thus come with a one-way ticket to hell.'" over-enthusiastic about getting in the votes."

Actually, it was disclosed, the first reported breach of soldier vote law provisions came to the Navy's attention about 10 days ago—from the east coast. Several war ballots were filed in New York state and in North Carolina.

The Navy department, in which Capt. William D. Puleston is the official war ballot representative under Secretary James V. Forrestal, immediately sent out a reminder to all units.

Ballots Thrown Out

Yesterday, Frank M. Jordan, secretary of state in California, threw out a big batch of premature war ballots and promptly queried Washington for an explanation as to why they were being circulated at this time. The Navy "ALNAV" followed.

Col. Robert Cutler, executive director of the War Ballot Commission and coordinator of soldier voting in the Army, telegraphed him in reply asking specifically whether any soldier votes were among his early ballots.

Under the soldier vote law the federal war ballot is restricted to service personnel from 20 certifying states lacking absentee ballot provisions, but the soldier or sailor must swear that he has applied for a state ballot by September 1 and failed to receive it by October 1 before being entitled to a federal ballot.

ment. The survey suggested a reduction of 4 mill which would save taxpayers $19,600 a year. Also suggested was the transfer of part of the county cash balance to a separate fund to be earmarked for post war projects.

The survey also recommended forfeited land sales now while land prices are high; installation of the purchase order certification system; purchase of all gasoline for county cars in large lots; reduction of number of election precincts; combining of city and county health districts.

Last survey of Pickaway county was made in October, 1942, and in the present survey it is stated that most of the recommendations made then have been carried out.

The recent survey praises the sheriff for reductions made in expenditures from $14,441.28 in 1941 to $10,093.11 in 1943. County commissioners are also especially commended for great progress in the management of Pickaway county government."

BOYER QUILTS AS WILLIAMSPORT SUPERINTENDENT

Resignation of the Williamsport superintendent and the employment of a superintendent for Monroe township schools were announced Friday by County Superintendent of Schools George D. McDowell.

A. W. Boyer, superintendent at Williamsport since September, 1938, has resigned to continue employment at Curtiss-Wright plant in Columbus. Mr. Boyer has been employed as a principal and superintendent in Pickaway county for 13 years. He went to Williamsport from Washington township.

Kenneth Christy, superintendent of Gibsonville school for the past two years, was employed in that capacity by the Monroe township board of education Thursday night. Mr. Christy has had varied experience as an elementary teacher, principal and junior high teacher, and was head of the mathematics department in Parkersburg, W. V. schools. He holds an AB degree from Ohio university and attended Columbia university.

His wife, Mrs. Gladys Christy, was employed as second and third grade teacher at the Monroe school. She has 15 years experience, was graduated from Ohio university normal school and took summer work at Rio Grande college.

Mrs. Catherine McCune Russell, of Mt. Sterling, was employed as instructor in home economics, science and English. She received training at Oklahoma A. and M. college and Penn State college.

Employment of the superintendent and two teachers completes the Monroe township staff, Mr. McDowell said.

LARGE POSTWAR AID CITED AS NEED OF CHINA

NEW YORK, July 28—The United States had a plea today from Dr. H. H. Kung, finance minister of the Chungking government and vice-president of the executive yang, for large postwar aid in the economic development of China.

Speaking at a dinner in his honor in New York, attended by 1,300 business and public officials of both countries, he said postwar China would be "an open market with abundant possibilities."

In behalf of the China-American Council of Commerce and Industry, Dr. Kung was presented with a silver plaque by Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Business Machine Corporation. Former Governor Charles Edison of New Jersey headed the dinner committee.

EUGENE GREENO SEES ACTION ON SAIPAN ISLAND

Private First Class Eugene Greeno has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Greeno, of Columbus, that he is now stationed on Saipan where things have quieted down, after being pretty tough for three or four weeks. This was the first word his parents had received concerning him in three months.

Pfc. Greeno, who is a brother of Mrs. Ralph Crist, Northridge road, is with the U. S. Army in communications, and has been overseas for two and one half years. He is based at Honolulu and expressed the hope in his letter that he would be returned there soon for a rest period. At one time, Pfc. Greeno served for seven weeks in the Marshalls.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Mary and I were just saying, Judge, how lucky we are here in America that we have so many natural resources to help win the war."

"That's right, Jim. When war broke out we had oil, we had steel, we had food, lumber, aluminum...practically everything we needed. There's one thing we didn't have...rubber. The enemy had that."

"But that didn't bother us for long. Soon American brains and industry had synthetic rubber by the tons rolling out of plants. That filled a critical need...you can't win a war without rubber."

"I was very much interested the other day in reading a statement made by a high government official on synthetic rubber. In it he said 'It is fair to regard the rubber manufactured to date as being almost solely the product of the beverage distilling industry.'"

"He also said that, in his estimation, the tremendous contribution of distillers' industrial alcohol to the synthetic rubber program had not received the recognition which it deserves."

"We certainly learned something today, didn't we Mary?"

NEW BRIDGES

IF success consists in the art of eliminating unnecessary details, it is easy to see why the United Nations are going ahead in the war. Bridge-building is one operation which has been made much easier than formerly. The new Bailey bridge, described in information just released by the British Information Service, would have seemed miraculous to Hannibal, Caesar or Napoleon.

Pontoons, or flat-bottomed boats on which the bridge rest, have been the time-honored basis for a crossing over a river. The Bailey bridge can extend 240 feet without pontoons, and much longer with them. It consists of 10-foot sections fitted together like a jigsaw puzzle, with no nuts or bolts, and containing only 17 parts to a section. The best German bridges have 24. In its lightest form it can carry 20 tons; it can be doubled or trebled to support the heaviest tanks. It is one of the reasons for Allied success in Italy and Normandy.

The Germans have justly prided themselves on their ingenuity, which has been one reason why our soldiers have often found it hard going. The Bailey bridge makes it clear that others can be smart, too.

MILKWEED

CONSIDER milkweed, long considered merely a pest. This year the country hopes to harvest a million and a half pounds, to take the place of the kapok formerly used in life jackets, life belts and smallboat cushions.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, 4-H Club members, and everybody else from Great Grandpa down to the Small Fry are being urged to pick milkweed. County Agricultural agents know about this and answer questions.

The pay is only 20 cents a bag for dry pods, 15 cents for green ones, but some grown-ups managed to pick up as much as $4 a day last year in this manner.

It is really a marvellous universe, and not the least of its many wonders are these of the discoveries of the uses of things formerly considered worthless. Tomatoes, for instance. They were once grown for foliage and perfume but considered poisonous to eat.

Travelers through the west often find their minds working on sage brush. There are days when it seems as if there must be more sage brush than anything else in the world. It's probably just waiting for some good industrial botanist to discover its power of serving the human race.

WASHINGTON—The smashing victories of the Russian army are causing military authorities in Washington to revise their ideas as to the probable end of the war in Europe. Some experts think the German army may collapse as early as September.

It is no secret among Allied military men that Germany is in very bad shape, and that she is virtually defeated so far as any hope of waging a successful military campaign is concerned.

However, the German army is expected to fight until the will to resist is knocked out of it and some conservative authorities therefore are wary about predicting the end. But an increase in "peace feelers" may be expected from now on.

GENERAL HO YING-CHIN, chief of the Chinese general staff, and minister of war in the Chiang Kai-shek cabinet, believes the current Jap offensive in central China is part of the enemy's long-range strategy to assure an escape corridor for its forces in the southwest Pacific.

According to the general, the Japanese are attempting to cut an escape corridor from north China, which they occupy, to Canton, along the Canton-Peking railroad, which they can use in the event their sea communications are cut.

He points out that this strategy is the result of spectacular American successes at sea and in the air. Once American forces reach the Philippines, Jap garrisons in the Indies will be in an almost hopeless position.

TRUMAN FDR CHOICE

WASHINGTON—Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away from the hardest-fought Democratic convention in years, several editors have suggested that this column give a detailed answer to the question whether the "Missouri Compromise" at Chicago was dictated by Mr. Roosevelt or by the big-city bosses. In other words, did the Haggans and the Flynns insist on Senator Truman, or were they obeying orders from their chief.

Perhaps the most succinct answer is to state that, when the Pennsylvania delegation first balloted as between Truman and Wallace, Postmaster General Frank Walker of Scranton leaned over to Attorney General Francis Biddle of Philadelphia and asked him how he, Walker, should vote. Biddle was for Wallace. But afterwards, Walker telephoned the President, and from then on he not only voted for Truman, but telephoned almost every chairman of State delegations urging, pleading that they vote for Truman too.

There were five members of the Roosevelt Cabinet in Chicago, some of whom had served with him for twelve long, arduous years. But he did not communicate with one of them except Frank Walker. On the other hand, Mayor Kelly of Chicago dropped word that he had talked to the President about ten times. Haggan and Flynn talked to him almost daily.

Here is the detailed, inside story of what happened:

When FDR conferred at a White House dinner with Ed Flynn, Bob Haggan, Mayor Kelly and other party bosses on Tuesday of the week before the convention, they all agreed that they did not want Henry Wallace. The President shared this view, even though he had already promised Wallace an "if I were a delegate" letter of endorsement.

It was also decided at the White House dinner that the two best Vice Presidential candidates were Senator Truman of Missouri and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. Nothing was then decided as to which was preferable.

HOW HANNEGAN GOT TRUMAN LETTER

Later, Chairman Haggan, charged with running the first convention of his life while the President would be on a train speeding across the continent, decided he wanted a letter to reinforce his hand. So he wrote the President a note, asking him if Truman or Douglas would be satisfactory. This was on Thursday, July 13.

Leo Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, heard about the note and told Haggan it was a mistake. This got back to the White House, and Crowley was called in for conference. He reiterated his view to the President that the latter, having written one letter urging delegates to vote for Henry Wallace, should not write another letter for Truman and Douglas.

The President replied that Haggan's note was merely one of inquiry, and he had a right to answer it. He did. Roosevelt's reply, though actually written on July 14, was post-dated July 19, to make it appear to have been written on the day the convention opened.

On July 14 also, it became known that War Mobilizer Jimmy Byrnes had his lightning rod up for the Vice Presidency. FDR indicated to his political advisers, be-

The Lurking Danger In Perspiration

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOONER OR later I knew deep down inside of me that someone would do it. And now they have. Why I didn't do it myself I don't know. I guess all I had was a shadowy hunch floating around inside my brain pan. That is the difference between a vague dreamer and a scientific discoverer.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The idea which was thus obscurely looming inside me is that perspiration is a good growth medium for the fungus parasites that infect the skin—athlete's foot and the like. And the scientists who made actual proof of this are two Chicago bacteriologists, Drs. Theodore Cornbleet and Esther Meyer.

They collected perspiration by incising human subjects up to their necks in a rubber bag while they were seated in an electric light heat cabinet. They would obtain 200 c. c. of perspiration in about twenty minutes—about a water glass full. I guess when you get that much you stop calling it perspiration and begin to call it sweat.

Sweat Supports Growth

Putting this sweat in culture tubes after it had been autoclaved, and inoculating it with common skin fungi it was shown to support growth of trichophyton, microsporum, etc. The trichophyton are responsible for the various forms of ringworm.

Anyone, as I have indicated, might have guessed that this was true because the favorite places for ringworm infections are the moist crevices of the body always bathed in perspiration—the armpits, the crotch and spaces between the toes particularly. In fact it is a safe bet that many of these have been called hyper-drosis, or miliaria—that is to say the eruption was ascribed to the irritating effect of the sweat alone.

No wonder then ringworm is so common. Not only does the perspiration furnish a natural medium for its growth, but the keratin of the skin does also. The keratin, as you know if you have read this column lately, is the upper, horny layer of the skin. The trichophyton likes to grow on this to such an extent that you can often find it growing on the leather of a chair in damp weather, or any similar leather goods.

It was once thought that the lactic acid in perspiration which is what makes it taste so sour was a detriment to the growth of skin fungi. But it has been shown that when the perspiration dries it quickly is attacked by saprophytes which alkalize it and also form sugars which probably increase its desirability as a growing field for the fungi.

Preventive Measures

The lesson of this is obvious—to bathe particularly the armpits, crotch and toes morning and evening during this hot weather and after drying the skin apply a mild antiseptic like boric acid or a dilute alcohol solution.

There is a new preparation for athlete's foot (which, of course, is a form of this fungus infection) called "Soretone," which is, if you are chemically minded, 4-Beta-Ethyl-Hexyl-P-mol. It was used first in 72 c. c. of severe, stubborn epidematophytosis of the feet, which had resisted other regular forms of treatment. Most of the cases (68%) showed marked improvement within 10 days and complete cure at the end of 20 days was the rule.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. A. K.—In excessive drinking is there a disease that affects the feet?

Answer: Yes—alcoholic neuritis.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Don't think of Irene, Judith! You had to think of Irene. Her great eyes with that expression in them, the expression you couldn't define. . . . Irene had exhibited the baby's layette and Judith had asked, smiling, "It doesn't look as if you lack anything. But I would so love to give the baby something." They had decided upon a little dress.

I have to go shopping, thought Judith, and ask, "May I see some baby clothes?"

Irene's baby, Matthew's. I will not think of that, Judith told herself. I will not. . . . I'll go away. I could go with Jimmy's sister to Palm Beach, she's back here for only a few days; I could return with her, I've lots of clothes. Mother won't mind, she's home now and loves it; Aunt Ella will be delighted.

Palm Beach and then perhaps there'd be someone who'd want her to go to North Carolina or Aiken. Or even here in town, Judith thought. I needn't see him, I needn't see anyone. I can call Mrs. Norman and say, "I've been so busy."

Too busy to be in love with a man who thought of you as a kid, a man who didn't know you existed as a woman—you hadn't known it for many hours yourself—a man who was happily married, whose wife expected a baby.

Judith would telephone Rose in the morning. She would ask, "May I come along to Palm Beach?" And Rose would tell Jimmy. Tonight, Jimmy had urged her and she had said no. And he had demanded, "Do you mean to tell me you're going to keep me here in this frigid town just because you won't go south? For if you won't, I won't either."

She would telephone Mary after a day or so, and say brightly, "I'm leaving for Palm Beach. Give my love to Irene and Matthew."

Really, she thought, I don't like you, Matthew! If we were together longer than ten minutes, we'd quarrel. I don't approve of you. But I do love you, she said in her heart, and felt the slow tears slide from under her lids and down her cheeks.

Judith left for Palm Beach. Mary had a postal from her. "So sorry not to see you again," she wrote, "or to phone but I went off in such a rush."

"It must be fun," said Irene, when Mary showed her the card.

"What?"

"Oh, to pick up that way," Irene said, "and run off somewhere where there are palm trees and blue water, and lots of music and dancing and beaux and all that."

Matthew—they were dining at Mary's—grinned at her across the table. "What's this," he demanded, "getting discontented? Want your doctor to write you a prescription for the South?"

Irene smiled at him. "Discontented," she repeated, and sighed, "with happiness and completion? I—don't be crazy!"

One-Minute Test

1. Are midshipmen paid while they attend the Naval Academy at Annapolis?
2. Who wrote the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States flag?
3. If a U. S. Navy ensign met a lieutenant in the WAVES, would he have to take orders from her because of her higher rank?

Words of Wisdom

Everything great is not always good, but all good things are great.—Demosthenes.

But I was thinking of Judith's full life. She's so young and gay and pretty."

"I don't know that her life is full," Mary remarked thoughtfully, "she'd a lot rather have a job, I believe. But her mother would hate it and Ella won't hear of it, of course. Ella does her best to spoil her, gives her everything."

"She's a nice kid," remarked Matthew, and tweaked Kate's apron strings as she passed him, "she won't spoil easy. And I agree with Irene, I think she has a pretty swell life."

"I'm not so sure," said Mary. "I'd like to see her happily married."

"Plenty of time," Matthew countered, "she's just a youngster." He looked at his watch. "I'll have to run," he told his small family, "sorry, and all that."

"I'll see that Irene gets home safe," his mother promised. He drank his coffee hastily, waved at them, and was gone. Irene looking after him said, "I don't see much of him these days."

"I know," comforted Mary, "but you would marry a doctor!"

"I can't imagine being married to anyone else," Irene admitted.

They sat companionably before a fire and talked for a little while longer. Irene spoke of Judith again, observing without rancor, "Matthew should have married a girl like that."

Mary was startled. "Why?" she inquired.

"Oh, I don't know. She's so pretty. 'So are you, my dear.'"

"Her type lasts. So much vitality. I feel a thousand years old beside her."

"You have had a very different life," declared her mother-in-law, "you have had responsibility, you have chosen a hard profession, earned your own living."

"I know, and I wouldn't change things. But Judith, Irene went on groping for words, "she—she's young, and she's growing all the time. She—a girl like her, I mean, would have brought Matthew so much I couldn't."

"What, for instance?"

"A stimulating mind," said Irene. "I don't put it very well, do I? And she's gay. She likes to go out—parties, dances. I don't, really. I can't remember ever feeling very young," she said. "And then, there's the money."

"Judith has none of her own."

"She will have. But I didn't mean Judith," Irene said, smiling. "I meant a girl like her."

"Matthew has done very well for himself, matrimonially speaking," stressed his mother. "Don't be fanciful, Irene."

"I'm not. And I'm contented . . . if only he is, always . . . and happy."

Mary nodded. She said, after a moment, "I know, I've felt that way about him for over thirty years."

Later, taking Irene home in the taxi, Mary said, "Matthew isn't letting you drive now, is he?"

"Now and then. Not that I care much about it," Irene answered.

Hints on Etiquette

If you are inviting a brother and sister to your home for a week-end, it is all right to send one invitation to them both, but better to send each a note.

Today's Horoscope

You have a keen, alert and active mind, if today is your birthday. You are energetic and, when working under strain, you are nervous and somewhat petulant, although charming and happy when your mind is free. You enjoy culture and refinement, love children and will be happy in your own home. Do not spoil the excellent vibrations now operating for success and harmony by doubtful friends. Concentrate on business and intellectual pleasures. Born on this date a child must be warned against arrogance and undue pride, then the fortunes should be good. Ambition should be awakened early.

PROTECT GOOD CARDS

IF YOU must give the defenders a chance to ruff one round of a suit in order to get it established, it is better to have them do it to some worthless little card instead of a high honor which you may need later as a trick taker. It is better, therefore, to lead toward that honor from the other hand. If it is ruffed, you play low. If not, you come up with the honor and win a trick with it.

Bidding of that general nature came at two duplicate tables, one declarer making the contract and the other botching it, though both got a lead of the heart A.

The unsuccessful declarer, after ruffing with the club 2, scored the club K and A, used the heart K to discard the spade 7, led the diamond A to the A, killing the Q, which East ruffed. He laid down the spade A and led the spade 2, which South ruffed with the club 10. The

"But there are times when I have to. It's so hard to park near the office, so he taxis around, when he can, but sometimes when he has some distance to go and hasn't time to get to the garage and take out the car, I bring it over to him, if there isn't anyone else to deliver it. But I don't mind, really, and of course, when this is all over, I won't mind at all."

Mary said, after a moment, "Odd that you should have spoken of Judith as you did. I've a confession to make: You know, she came to see me, the very day you and Matthew were married and I admit I sat and looked at her and did a little match-making in my mind. A fatuous mother! You'll find out all about that, someday, and soon. And then I had Matthew's wire."

"I've often thought," Irene all but whispered, "how much we must have hurt you. I didn't want to do things that way—" She stopped suddenly.

"I wasn't hurt," Mary objected loyally; "why should I have been? I have never demanded that Matthew come running to me to solve his every problem." She smiled, in the darkness of the cab, and added, "How wise he was, how right! You are the wife for him, Irene, now and always."

Later she was to remember that and to be grateful that she had said it.

The cab stopped and Mary told the driver to wait. She took Irene's arm and walked slowly with her across the glassy street to the door, went in with her, and saw her safe in Nellie's care. Then she kissed her, went back to the cab and home. The telephone was ringing when she entered.

It was Lynn Mortimer. He'd been away for several days; "I'm back," he said, "and dead for sleep. There was a sleet storm in Atlanta, believe it or not."

"Have you a cold?"

"No, I am hoarse from arguing and lack of sleep. But I couldn't unwind until I had spoken to you and told you I was home and glad to be here. Will you dine with me tomorrow night?"

"I'm sorry—I have to see a client."

"Thursday, then? It's been a long time since I've seen you."

"Thursday. Wouldn't you rather come here instead?"

"I'd love to, if you are sure you want me."

Presently Mary hung up and went to bed, smiling, a contented woman. She had so much: Matthew and Irene, and soon she would share their child. She had her work and her friends. She had Lynn Mortimer's long and patient devotion, durable, solid as rock. She was unusually well for a woman of middle age. She had even—she told herself and smiled at her own vanity—she had even kept her looks. And she hadn't had a bad migraine in months. She went to bed, after reading for a time, slept soundly.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROTECT GOOD CARDS

IF YOU must give the defenders a chance to ruff one round of a suit in order to get it established, it is better to have them do it to some worthless little card instead of a high honor which you may need later as a trick taker. It is better, therefore, to lead toward that honor from the other hand. If it is ruffed, you play low. If not, you come up with the honor and win a trick with it.

The other declarer, after ruffing the heart A, went after diamonds before trumps, laying down the A. This dropped the Q, and South then led the club K to the A. The heart K brought a discard of the spade 7, and the diamond 9 was led. East ruffed, but notice that South was now able to play the diamond 2, saving his K and J. East desperately underled the spade A with the 2, West winning with the K and returning the diamond 8.

The dummy's club 9 was too high for East to over-ruff, so he discarded a heart and South played the 3. The club 7 to the Q, the J and 10 were followed by the diamond K and J and the now good 6, making the contract.

Gideon's Faithful Few

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 30 is Judges 6, 7, 8, the Golden Text being Samuel 14:6, "There is no restraint to Jehovah to save by many or by few.")

AFTER DEBORAH'S time the Israelites again went back to their old evil ways and worshipped Baal in the place of their own God. For this they were delivered into the hands of the Midianites, who came up as "grasshoppers for multitude," and they despoiled the land for the children of Israel so that there was little for them to eat and they were driven to live in caves.

Of course, the people cried to the Lord to deliver them, and one day when Gideon, son of Joash, was threshing wheat near the wine press on his father's land, so that the Midianites would not see him, the angel of the Lord appeared and, seating himself under an oak, said to Gideon, "The Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of God."

Gideon asked how it was if the Lord was with them that they were so oppressed, and the Lord answered, "Go in thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites." Gideon protested that his father was poor and he, Gideon, was the least of his sons. The Lord reassured him, "Surely I shall be with thee."

Asks for a Sign
Gideon requested a sign that this messenger really was the angel of the Lord. He told the angel not to leave until he had presented him with a gift. He therefore prepared a meal, and the angel told him to put the food on a rock and pour the broth over it, and the angel took his staff and touched the food, and fire rose out of the rock and consumed it. Thus Gideon was convinced that this was God's messenger.

That night Gideon was instructed to slay a young bullock, then to wreck the altar to Baal and to erect one to the Lord, and lay the bullock thereon. He did so, and next morning the people were so angry they demanded Gideon's death, but his father, Joash, whose faith in the Lord was renewed, told them that "If he be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar." No one touched Gideon after that.

All the Midianites and Amalekites gathered themselves together for battle and pitched their tents in the valley of Jezreel. With the spirit of the Lord upon him, Gideon blew his trumpet and sent messengers to all the tribes to gather his people for battle against their enemies. Gideon, however, was still not quite convinced that the Lord was with him, so he asked the Lord to give him another sign. He would put a fleece on the floor and if it was wet with dew in the morning and all about it was dry, he would take that for the sign. It was so, and then he asked that this sign be reversed, and the fleece be dry while the rest should be wet; and it was so.

Too Many Men
The Israelites gathered, but the Lord said there were too many. Some left, but still they were too many, said the Lord. Then all were to go down to the water to drink, and Gideon was to see those that lapped water like dogs, and those who knelt to drink, and when all drank 300 men lapped the water as if they had not time to drink kneeling. These were chosen.

Gideon was then told to take his servant, Phurah, and go to the Midianites' tents and hear what they were saying. The two men went and heard a man telling of his dream—that a cake of barley tumbled down into the host and it fell; and his fellow said that meant that Gideon and his men would triumph.

Gideon and Phurah worshipped, and then Gideon divided his 300 men into three companies, giving each man a trumpet in his right hand and a pitcher with a light therein in the other. They were stationed around the Midianites' encampment. Gideon told his followers to watch him and do as he did. He raised his trumpet and blew and smashed his pitcher so that the light flared. All his men did likewise, and all shouted, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon."

The Midianites, suddenly awakened from sleep, were so terrified that they fled, mistaking one another for enemies, and the rout was overwhelming.

As they pursued the Midianites and captured two princes, Oreb and Zeeb, whom they slew, Gideon's men grew faint with hunger. They asked the men of Succoth and later those of Peniel for food, which was refused. Gideon later punished them severely for this.

The Israelites wanted Gideon to be their king, but he refused. He did, however, take all the jewelry that the Israelites had taken from their enemies and made an ephod—a richly embroidered garment for a Jewish priest. This rich garment was a source of temptation to all Israel. During Gideon's lifetime there was peace in Israel, but when he died, they again were unfaithful to their God.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
To minimize the amount of dirt carried up on the walls by heat from radiators, frequently dust the radiators and floor areas nearby. Use shields on top of radiators and if they have flanges on the back, try bending them out so they will touch the wall. These measures may help to divert the heat.

To keep the cover of an iron "Dutch oven" free from rust, scour cover thoroughly until it is bright and clean. Rinse with clear water and wipe dry. To minimize rusting, the cover should be well rubbed with fat or cooking oil, then placed in an oven and baked at a low temperature for an hour or so. Wash the cover in the usual manner, rinse and dry well. Never allow either kettle or cover to soak in wash water for a long time, and dry them well as soon as they are washed.

TRIBE BACK ON WINNING TRAIL; YANKS LOSE 8-1

CLEVELAND, July 28—Allie Reynolds, the Cleveland Indians' American league strikeout king, today had pitched the Indians to an 8 to 1 victory over the New York Yankees to give the Tribe a 2 to 1 series edge over the Gotham.

Reynolds was hit freely, but, with men on base, he was exceptionally stingy and managed to scatter the base knocks effectively. It was his 11th win against seven losses.

Walter Dubiel, who went all the way for the Yanks, gave up 13 hits, including five extra base blows. It was his third straight loss and ninth against six wins. Myril Hoag led the Tribe at the plate with four hits in five times at bat, including two doubles. He drove in three runs and scored three times himself.

NAVY CALLS MARSHALL
CINCINNATI, July 28 — Max Marshall, sensational Cincinnati Reds outfielder, today was ordered to report to his Randolph, Ia., draft board for induction into the Navy on August 5.

fore he left Washington, that he was so fond of Byrnes he couldn't bear to tell him that he wasn't acceptable. He asked them to help take Byrnes out of the race. (Byrnes had taken vigorous stands against the anti-poll tax and anti-lynching bills).

Came the day before the convention. Ed Flynn, meeting Hannegan emerging from the Blackstone Hotel, told him that New York couldn't take Byrnes for Vice President, that Byrnes would alienate the decisive Negro vote. Sidney Hillman and Phil Murray of the CIO had told Hannegan that labor was thumbs-down on Byrnes. At Hannegan's suggestion, they went to Byrnes himself and, in less blunt language, told him the same thing. Byrnes, always unselfish where the President's wishes are concerned, withdrew.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS FROM FDR

This left as the chief vice presidential contenders: Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Senator Truman of Missouri, and Vice President Wallace himself.

Justice Douglas, as the convention opened, had been mentioned in the secret Roosevelt letter to Hannegan, but he had developed almost no popular support. At that time, of course, no one except insiders knew about the White House letter.

However, the convention began to hear whispers about the letter almost the day the convention opened, July 19. That also was the day that Flynn, Hannegan, Kelly and Hague got their final instructions to go for Truman.

Those instructions were delivered to a room in the Blackstone hotel, when Ed Flynn got the President by phone in his railroad car, and asked him again point-blank about Truman or Douglas. Mayor Kelly, Mayor Hague and Bob Hannegan also participated in the conversation.

They did not tell the President, he intimated to Wallace friends later, how much delegate strength Wallace had. Had he known this, FDR indicated after all the shouting was over, his decision might have been different. However, there is no escaping the fact that FDR himself made the final choice regarding Truman.

It then became the job of the bosses to carry out instructions.

DOUGLAS A COMPLICATION

This became rather complicated because they had a letter endorsing not only Truman but also Justice Douglas. So they adopted the strategy of saying they had a letter approving Truman, keeping absolutely mum about the fact that Douglas, too, was mentioned. For instance, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, in a showdown with R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers, said:

"R. J., we've got to have the Michigan delegation with us for Truman, and I want you to swing it. You want to go along with the boss, don't you? Well, I can tell you he's absolutely for Truman and I have a letter to prove it. Do you want to see it?"

"You're right I do," replied the doubting Thomas.

Mayor Kelly hesitated. "I haven't got it with me," he said, "but I'll show it to you tomorrow."

Meanwhile, Assistant Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman told his Colorado delegation:

"When the President writes a letter endorsing Wallace, and when certain people here tell me he's for Truman, I prefer to believe that the President is telling the truth."

So for about two days, the bosses were in a dilemma. They had a letter endorsing both Truman and Douglas, but they only wanted to put across Truman.

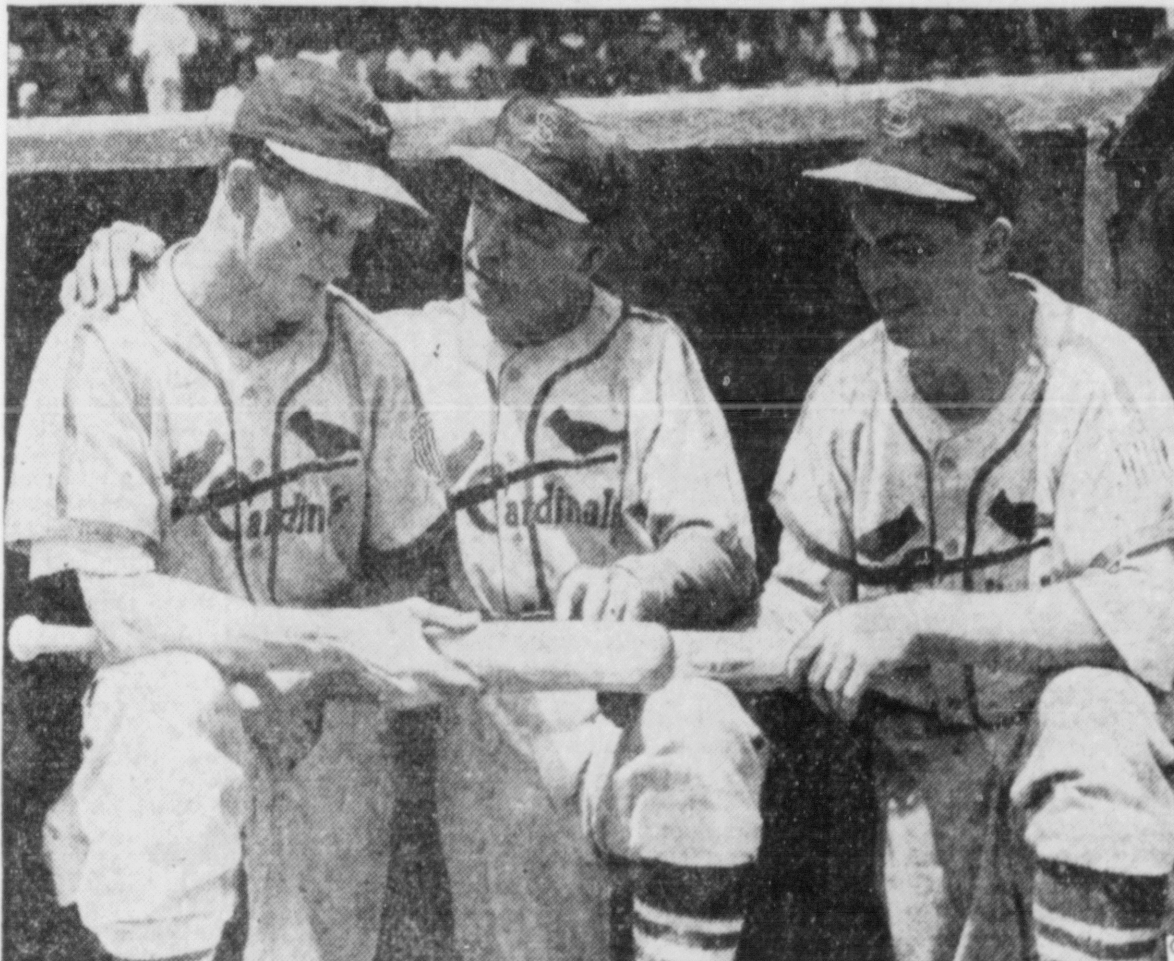

(A second and concluding column giving the inside of the Chicago merry-go-round will follow).

JACK NORRIS SUCCEEDS JOE DONNELLY AT LIMA

LIMA, July 28—Appointment of Jack E. Norris, of Dayton, to succeed Joe Donnelly, of Columbus, as vice president and business manager of the Lima Red Birds of the Class D Ohio State baseball league was announced today by club officials.

Norris, who has served as an umpire in the six-team circuit since its revival this Spring, previously served as an umpire in the Atlantic and Central States leagues.

THEY PACK THE BIG GUNS FOR THE CARDINALS

HITTING, PITCHING AND FIELDING of the St. Louis Cardinals is of the best and those are the reasons the St. Louis gang is out in front by more than a dozen games. The biggest clubbing is being done by Stan Musial, left, who has a .350 bat mark, and Johnny Hopp, right, who is hitting .325. In center is the Cards' boss man, Billy Southworth. (International)

Rivals In All-American Game

CONNIE Mack, left, leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, will manage the eastern team and Mel Ott, right, pilot of the New York Giants, will manage the western squad in the All-American boys' baseball game to be played in the Polo Grounds, New York City, August 7.

REDLEGS CLIMB BACK TO SECOND BY WINNING 4-2

BOSTON, Mass., July 28—The Cincinnati Reds were back in second place in the National league standings today by the slim margin of two percentage points.

The Reds regained their mid-season post by defeating the Boston Braves, 4 to 2, in a game played in comparative privacy—before only 785 customers—while the Pittsburgh Pirates, who stood second before yesterday's action, were rained out in their scheduled game with the New York Giants.

Cincinnati pushed across two runs in the fourth inning to take an early lead, but Boston fought back to tie the score at 2-all in the sixth and seventh frames. In the eighth the Reds scored their winning runs. Johnny Criscola started the winning rally with a double, First Baseman Frank McCormick was intentionally walked and Catcher Ray Mueller doubled to right center, scoring both Criscola and McCormick.

ARLINGTON HANDICAP ATTRACTS 8 ENTRIES

CHICAGO, July 28—A field of eight thoroughbreds is expected to go to the post Saturday in the $50,000 added Arlington handicap at Washington park, with Calumet Farm's Pensive and Allen Drumheller's Georgie Drum the probable favorites.

Pensive since winning national acclaim for victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness has lost some favor by dropping four straight races, but will get plenty of support.

Georgie Drum is well liked for his triumph in the recent $50,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap.

Equifox, Old Kentuck and Daily Trouble will run as an entry. Other probable starters are Valinda Fox, War Knight, and Bushwhacker.

CARDS STRETCH LEAD; BROWNIES FUMBLE CHANCE

Red Birds Win Two From Phils; Athletics Beat American Leaders

NEW YORK, July 28—The St. Louis Cardinals, who have hopelessly outclassed the rest of the National League field, have thus deprived the loop of any resemblance to a competitive thrill. Scraps of glory are being grabbed spasmodically in the fight for second place, with the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates doing all the grabbing.

The Reds took advantage of the Pirates' idleness Thursday to slide into second place in the senior league, replacing the Bucs. While the Pirates lounged in their hotel lobby, after seeing their night encounter with the New York Giants washed out, the Cincinnati Reds whipped out a twilight triumph over the Boston Braves, 4 to 2.

Ray Mueller's eighth-inning double scoring two clubmates did the trick. Jim Konstanty allowed eight hits for his fourth win of the season. Ira Hutchinson, who relieved Nate Andrews in the eighth, was charged with the loss.

The Cards, nevertheless, rolled on with two wins over the Philadelphia Phillies, 8 to 7 and 5 to 0, to run their winning streak to seven straight. The Phillies staged a late rush in the first game, scoring two runs in the sixth and three more in the seventh, all off Harry Brecheen, but were curbed in the last inning by Al Jurisich. Mort Cooper sailed to his 13th triumph against four losses in the arc nightcap, yielding only two hits.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians continued their rise to power with an 8 to 1 victory over the New York Yankees. Allie Reynolds, on the Indian mound, yielded 11 Yankee hits, while Walter Dubiel allowed 13 safeties and was charged with the loss.

The St. Louis Browns dropped a night game to the last-place Philadelphia Athletics, 7 to 5. Russ Christopher needed the help of Jonas Berry in the seventh and Bobo Newsum in the eighth, but the Browns managed to get only six hits off all three. Starter Sig Jakucki was tabbed for the defeat.

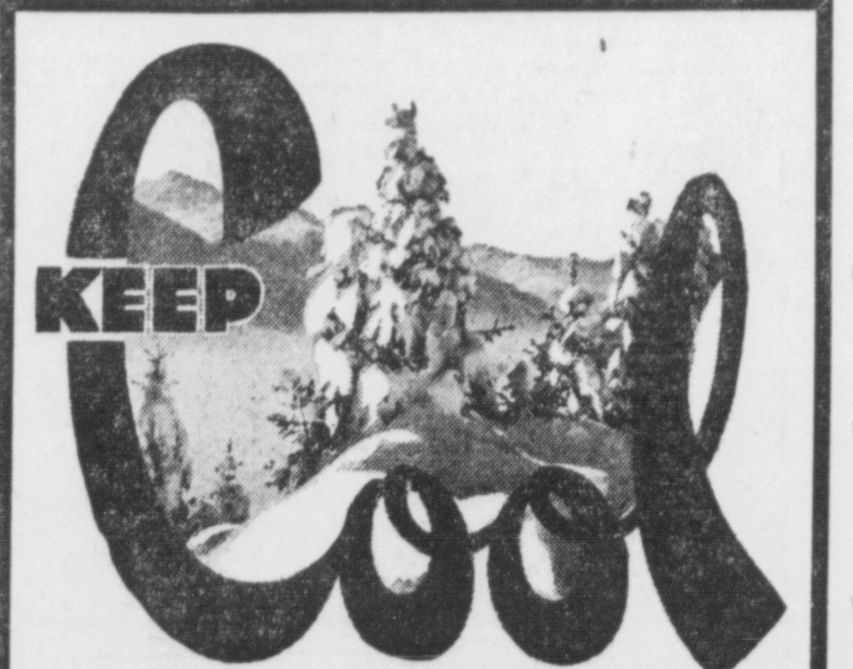

The Chicago White Sox, behind the four-hit hurling of Orval Grove, defeated the Washington Senators, 4 to 0. The White Sox gained eight safeties off Emil (Dutch) Leonard and Alex Carrasquel. A pair of runs in the third and two more in the sixth gave Grove his win.

The Boston Red Sox slid into a tie with the Yankees for second place with a 6 to 1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers. Tex Hughson racked up his 16th victory of the year as Stubby Overmire was driven from the mound in the third.

DAILY DOUBLE PAYS OFF $1,043 FOR $2 TICKET

CHICAGO, July 28—Fifty-two race fans rejoiced today in their selection of Mrs. W. Renard's Neat Kee and Dick Jacobs' Obispo for the daily double combination in yesterday's first and second races at Washington park.

Each of 51 bettors received back $1,043 for his $2 investment, the largest daily double returns of the season at Chicago tracks. One happy visitor who liked the pair well enough to buy a ticket at the $10 window received $5,215.

cast Sunday. This program replaces the "seven hits of seven composers" feature originally scheduled. Included in Sunday's broadcast will be "Pan Americana" and a medley of spirituals, featuring the choir. The hymn of the evening, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," will be dedicated to the cadet nurses at Temple university hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., and to the WAVES at the Pensacola Naval Air Training Center, Pensacola, Fla.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

A unique human drama unfolded at the "Blind Date" microphone on the latest program. Boy met girl as usual, but in this case they were brother and sister. Sgt. Ken Niglis, formerly of Verona, Wis., appearing on the show after seeing 20 months of action overseas, met his sister, Betty, by a dramatic coincidence, the "Blind Date" beauty of the evening. Their surprise reunion was celebrated with other "Blind Date" couples at the famous Stork Club, with all expenses paid by the show's sponsor.

"Stage Door Canteen," inspired by the noble efforts of our service men and women and dedicated to them, celebrates its second birthday on August 4. And with that occasion, comes a surprise: the announcement that the popular Friday night program will continue after the war.

It was originally planned that the program would air just till victory—but now it has been decided to keep on broadcasting the show even after the war, an idea inspired when 100 army doctors, who will take part in the nation's post-war plans for our fighting men, attended one of the broadcasts. These men, who were psychologists and psychiatrists in civilian life, said that one of the important factors contributing to the rehabilitation of returning service people will be entertainment. So, radio's "Stage Door Canteen" and the "Stage Door Canteen" throughout the U. S. stand ready to help.

As a result of the radio series, leading cities all over the country now have "Stage Door Canteen" recreation centers, supported largely through the contributions of the program's sponsor, who provides a specified handsome sum each week.

The stokers aboard the Victory Ship "John B. Fellows" this week notified Radio-Screen Luminary Gale Page, who is heard as "Your Hollywood Neighbor" on the "Star Playhouse" drama, that she has been voted "The Girl We'd Most Like to Wash Our Ears For." Miss Page is sending the tars a washable, cellophane-protected and autographed photo to be hung in the engine room.

T. D. Van Camp, 72, retired Williamsport contractor, and his former bookkeeper, John A. Kidd, 71, of Columbus, Friday, had been freed from payment of heavy fines for income tax evasion.

Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood Thursday excused the men from serving six-month prison terms imposed for evading income tax payments after three physicians had informed the judge that imprisonment would endanger the men's lives. The suspension was granted on condition that Van Camp pay a $10,000 fine and Kidd $2,000. Both fines were paid.

Van Camp and Kidd were convicted in April of evading income tax payments of $70,000, including penalties, for 1935, 1936 and 1937.
